Start date: 1 October 2018 or as soon as possible thereafter

Magdalen College, Oxford and the Faculty of Law, University of Oxford propose, if a suitable candidate applies, to appoint to an Official (Tutorial) Fellowship in Law and an Associate Professorship or Professorship of Law. This is a permanent position, subject to completion of a successful review. Applications are invited from candidates who are active researchers of outstanding ability in Law, with a major research interest in Land Law, Jurisprudence, or Roman Private Law, and with the ability to provide excellent tutorial teaching, classes, and lectures. The successful candidate will be required to engage in scholarly research and publication and to teach at least one of the following compulsory papers for the BA: Land Law, A Roman Introduction to Private Law, and Jurisprudence. Candidates must hold a doctorate or LLM equivalent at the time of interview. Candidates must have a sound knowledge of Law in the relevant subjects, the ability or potential to undertake College and University administration and a willingness to participate in College and University business, and excellent communication, interpersonal, and organisational skills.

Applications, containing a completed application cover sheet (including the names and addresses of three referees), a detailed covering letter (which should set out information about the candidate’s research and the subjects which the candidate could offer to teach for the College and for the Faculty), a full curriculum vitae including a list of publications, and two samples of written work should be sent by email to Miss Liz Howdill (Academic Administrator, Magdalen College, Oxford, OX1 4AU), email liz.howdill@magd.ox.ac.uk (tel. (+44) 0 1865 276113; fax (+44) 0 1865 276094), to arrive by noon GMT on 21 November
2017. Candidates should ask their referees to send references directly to the Academic Administrator by this deadline without further prompting. Further particulars and an application cover sheet are located on the College website at: www.magd.ox.ac.uk/job-vacancies. It is anticipated that interviews will be held on 13 December 2017.

Applications are particularly welcome from women and black and minority ethnic candidates, who are under-represented in academic posts in Oxford.
