

Old Kitchen Bar

The Old Kitchen Bar is the oldest building on site, dating from the 1300s. It is the former location of the College kitchens and evidence of the original fireplaces can still be seen. The Old Kitchen Bar offers a large reception space for informal gatherings for up to 120 and includes a riverside terrace. A variety of hot or cold fork or finger buffets for up to 80 can be offered.

Light meals and hot and cold soft drinks are served in the Old Kitchen when the College is open to the general public. Conference participants are welcome to use this space also, and it is popular for small informal meetings in the afternoons, and has WiFi Internet access.

The bar is open to residents in the evenings serving beer, wine and spirits as well as soft drinks.
