

Seminar Rooms

A number of seminar rooms offer seating for 14 – 50. Availability is limited in term-time due to College commitments.

Pictured above is the Summer Common Room. It is used for College meetings and also for the tradition of 'Dessert' taken after dinner on summer evenings when the academic Fellows of the College and their guests sit over Port, dessert wine, fresh fruit and chocolates.

The Summer Common Room seats 50 theatre style, 30 in a horseshoe, or 14 board room style, and is covered by WiFi Internet.

The room benefits from natural daylight and views of the College on two sides, but can also be darkened using window blinds and shutters, when data projection is required.

The Old Practice Room, pictured to the left, is an example of a smaller meeting room seating 12 – 14 boardroom style, and is suitable for small meetings or as a breakout room for larger events.

Other meeting rooms include the Daubeny Laboratory – now a high-ceilinged lecture room seating up to 50 with integral data projection – situated next to the University of Oxford Botanic Gardens. A number of smaller seminar rooms seating 16 - 20 classroom style are also available.
