

Magdalen College Punts 2026

The College punts will be in the water from 2nd May until late-September. Please take the time to read the following notes, particularly if you've never punted before.

BOOKING PUNTS

- Bookings are now made using an online ticketing system via the following booking link. All resident Members of College, including staff, may book and use punts.
- To access the punt booking link for Magdalen members please go to: <https://magdox.digitickets.co.uk/event-tickets/59303?catID=57460&>
- Punt keys may be collected from Magdalen Porter's Lodge and returned at the end of the session. Upon collection you will need to present a University card matching the name of the person making the booking.
- Punts may not be taken out before 9am. You must return the keys to the Porters' Lodge by the time it gets dark or by 10pm (whichever is earlier). This is important: you and the punts are not insured at other times. This is a College rule and will be monitored daily; those not abiding by the rules, may be denied further use of punts without refund. It will not be possible to book punts when there are adverse conditions on the water.
- You may not book more than one punt at a time. Punts may be booked for 2-hour slots and up to 4 hours by booking 2 x 2-hour slots.
- Please make sure you are on time for your booking. If you are running late to pick up the keys and have not telephoned ahead to the Porters, your punt will be made available to anyone else who might be waiting. If you are running late to return your keys at the end of your booking, make sure you telephone the Porters to let them know (01865 276000).
- By taking out punts you are declaring you, and any others in your punt(s), are able to swim adequately. Some life-jackets are available in the shed. Children under the age of 12 are not allowed in the punts (any child over the age of 12 must wear a lifejacket, please be aware there may be a limited number of these).
- In case of emergency, please advise the Lodge on 01865 276000.
- Please make a note of any problems you encounter, or any loss or damage sustained, in an email to punts@magd.ox.ac.uk. In the unlikely event that your punt gets lost somewhere down the river, you must get in touch with one of us immediately so we can launch a rescue expedition.

Note: Resident members of Mansfield may book the punt marked for them on their own page on the College website (Digitickets), on the same arrangements as above, and will contribute to the costs.

EQUIPMENT

- In exchange for your own College keys, the Porters will give you a set of three keys which open the punt shed, marked MC Punts and located on Addison's Walk just opposite the Old Kitchen Bar.
 - For punting, you should collect a paddle and cushions from the shed.
 - If there is water in the boat (e.g. because it has rained overnight), there are plastic scoops in the shed you can use to bail the water.

- The second key opens the pole cupboard, located to the left of the punt shed. You should take one pole from the cupboard if punting. Please ensure that you lock both the shed and the pole cupboard before leaving.
- The cupboard has a tendency to lock itself and cannot be unlocked from the inside, so be careful not to get trapped. Always leave at least one person outside with the keys.
- The punts are beyond and behind the shed in the river, and are marked with numbers corresponding to those on the key floats. The third key will unlock the padlock which ties the punt to the bank. Please remember to get in the punt before unlocking it.
- When returning, please tie up your boat on the matching mooring. After securing your boat, please ensure you return all equipment, lock the shed, and take all your possessions and any rubbish with you before returning the keys to the Lodge.

WHERE TO PUNT

- You can punt upstream or downstream on the Cherwell from Magdalen Bridge. Upstream takes you past the College meadows, the Fellows' Garden (always steer to port – left – at the fork here), past Mesopotamia Walk and through to the University Parks. Here, you can drag your punt up the rollers to continue in the direction of LMH.
- Punting downstream, you can circumnavigate the School playing fields and punt past St Hilda's and along Christ Church meadow. Both forks around Boathouse Island will take you to the Isis, although the route that follows the Christ Church meadow side is shallow and you risk running aground.
- You can certainly continue punting along the Isis, so long as the punt's registration plate is visible. You should endeavour to obey the Rules of the River (below) and stay out of the way of other craft. Remember, in particular, that rowers may not see you coming, since they are facing the other way; even a cox may have limited vision.
- Punting downstream on the Isis takes you towards Iffley Lock (which is about as far as a reasonably fast punter could travel and return in 2 hours); there are convenient moorings on the bank outside the Isis pub. Punting upstream takes you towards the Head of the River and, beyond that, it is even possible to punt to the Trout and the Perch (albeit not in 2 hours and only by navigating Osney Lock, which is a deep lock with end-filling sluices and should only be attempted by experienced punters equipped with a long line).
- You can find more information about the places you can see en route, as well as some instructions on how to punt, at <http://www.dailyinfo.co.uk/guide/punting.htm>

RULES OF THE RIVER

- Most punters, especially tourists and other novices, adopt a somewhat erratic approach to steering: zig-zagging and bouncing from bank to bank is the norm in the vicinity of Magdalen Bridge. While it is, accordingly, unlikely that you will be arrested for failing to comply with the Rules of the River, you should nevertheless endeavour to do so wherever possible. Above all, try to use common sense and courtesy (e.g., racing is not allowed).
 - There are, perhaps, three basic rules of the river. First, it is essential always to keep a good lookout and be prepared to slow down or stop. Even if you are on the correct side of the river and you have right of way, you have a responsibility to avoid collisions.

- Second, unlike driving on the roads, you navigate on the right-hand side of the river and pass oncoming boats port side to port side (left side to left side). Overtaking (often an unpredictable exercise where tourists are concerned) also takes place on the port (left) side of the other boat, towards the middle of the river.
- Third, near bridges and bends, boats travelling downstream have right of way. Motor boats should give way to sailing and rowing boats.
- Avoid turning your boat near bridges, bends and locks. Do not turn across the bow of an oncoming boat; wait until it's safe to turn.
- You can moor your boat in the river, so long as it does not cause an obstruction to other users. Mooring to the bank, even where there is a towpath, can be problematic, as the bank is often privately owned.
- Please don't throw any rubbish of any kind overboard – even apple cores take a long time to disintegrate. Litter can kill wildlife, and it can cause problems for other river users.
- Do not tamper with the registration plate in the boats.

Keep to the side of the channel on your right side

GENERAL PUNTING ADVICE

- Punting is a uniquely pleasant experience, so long as you remain in the boat. Try to avoid falling into the water, as the Cherwell and the Isis smell distinctly unpleasant when they permeate your clothes. Watch out for branches that trap your pole and feel for muddy stretches of riverbed when you drop your pole: both can leave you in jeopardy. If faced with choosing between holding on to the pole and staying in the boat, always choose the boat.
- If you are handling the pole, standing up or otherwise risking accidental immersion, it is a good idea to remove your phone, watch, wallet, etc. first (and consider stashing your phone in a plastic bag out of the way in any event). If your phone gets wet, you should remove the battery immediately to have any chance of salvaging it.
- Do not assume that anyone in any other vessel knows what he or she is doing, let alone what you are doing. If it looks as though you might bump another boat, warn the passengers on both vessels. Avoid putting any part of yourself between the boat and a bank, tunnel, bridge or another boat.
- If you punt upstream along the Cherwell, you will pass (at the lower level of) several weirs. You will also pass (at the upper level of) several weirs if you punt along some of the side-channels and streams off the section the Isis downstream of Boathouse Island. Always take great care near weirs and sluices. Unless you are a very strong punter, you should steer clear of the weirs on the Isis and even experienced punters should be ready for strong flows. At the upper level of weirs and sluices, always turn around where there are warning signs. At the lower level, be aware of eddy currents when sluices are open. Do not underestimate the power of the river.
- Do not go up or down rollers with people in the punt: the results are likely to be expensive if not tragic.
- Watch out for floating tree trunks and other debris.
- Always keep a good distance from anglers on the bank and from their tackle.
- There are occasionally regattas, processions and other events on the Isis. You should avoid obstructing or passing these. If you are approaching an event, navigate slowly and cautiously and take advice from officials or marshals.
- Be aware of waterborne diseases such as Weil's disease (leptospirosis), though these are extremely rare. Keep cuts and scratches covered; if you fall in, take a shower and treat cuts with antiseptic; make sure you wash wet clothing before you wear it again.

Punting is a part of the Oxford experience, especially at Magdalen – enjoy!
